Instructions

Objective: Individually create a detailed design treatment for an original board game, covering the concept, gameplay mechanics, visual style, target audience, and inclusivity features. This foundational work will lead to further development phases.

1. Work on the below tasks (recommended to do in the order provided). 2. After you have the core concepts/sketches seek external feedback from 3 different people, preferably people from your target audience
2. Once all items are filled out, ensure this worksheet is saved and explore the PDF
3. Upload the PDF to a branch called DesignTreatment on GitHub
4. Create a pull request to main, and complete the merge
5. Upload the same PDF to Canvas

Section #1: (2 pts.) Crafting The Game Treatment

Progress: 100%

⇒ Task #1 (0.29 pts.) - Possible Title(s) of the Game

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Propose fitting title(s) reflecting the game's essence
- Explanation of title(s) choices

Your Response:

honestly i haven't even considered naming the project, but at the beginning the code name for it was 'zombopoly' because it was more like monopoly at the time and it has

name for it was "Zombopoly" because it was more like monopoly at the time and it had a nice ring to it so i've just been referring to it as that. but I will come up with something better at some point.

⇒ Task #2 (0.29 pts.) - Game Setting

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the setting

Your Response:

it's like a zombie apocalypse at a super market or something.

⇒ Task #3 (0.29 pts.) - Game Characters

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the characters

Your Response:

I haven't named anyone, the code names are just (the mechanic)_girl so it would be like zombie_girl or smoking_girl.

⇒ Task #4 (0.29 pts.) - Game Theme

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the theme

Your Response:

zombie apocalypse

⇒ Task #5 (0.29 pts.) - Game Story

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the story

Your Response:

[medic] I HAVE NO IDEA :D

⇒ Task #6 (0.29 pts.) - Objectives and Conflicts

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Describe the goals and challenges within the game

Your Response:

the goal of the game is to be the last person standing, for now. I don't think that's a good goal, but we're working with it. there are a bunch of bosses around the map that drop better stuff, so that's the challenge. you can either wait until you have strong enough items to take down the boss solo, or team up with someone you have good chemistry with and destroy the boss with them immediately. I designed the characters so that they each have intended partners and items that breaks them and makes the dopamine rush of landing combos feel good.

⇒ Task #7 (0.29 pts.) - Game Mechanics

Progress: 100%

Details:

- List each mechanic with supporting details to clearly portray the mechanic

Your Response:

your response:
there's lots, but so far there's dice rolls to move, dice rolls to attack, items, enemies, money, character specific abilities, status effects, and more freaky things.

Section #2: (1 pt.) Target Audience Analysis

Progress: 100%

⇒ Task #1 (1 pt.) - Identify and analyze the game's target audience

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Clearly identify the target audience
- Include analysis of demographics, interests, and gaming habits
- Justification of appeal to target audience

Your Response:

my target audience was originally people who like spreadsheets, but now its basically a game for couples because of how heavily teaming up is incentivised

Section #3: (1 pt.) Accessibility And Inclusivity Strategies

Progress: 100%

⇒ Task #1 (1 pt.) - Outline strategies to make your game accessible and inclusive

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Include considerations for diverse abilities
- Outline inclusivity strategies for a wide audience
- Discuss implementation of noted inclusivity strategies without compromising gameplay

Your Response:

despite how complex it is, i'm trying to keep the bones of it simple. at its core, you move around the board by rolling dice; certain tiles do things, etc. the rule book is going to be easy to read and identify certain situations at a glance

Section #4: (2 pts.) Pitch Preparation

Progress: 100%

⇒ Task #1 (2 pts.) - Pitch

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Summarize concept and theme
- Compellingly highlight target audience and unique selling points
- Emphasize how the game stands out in the current market

Your Response:

you have an array of characters you and your friends can choose to dive into a world where zombies are rampant, but instead of them being the danger, you are. execute powerful combos, eradicate enemy health bars, and find game-breaking items that ascend you to the power level of a saiyan.

Section #5: (2 pts.) Visualizing The Game Concept

Progress: 75%

🖼 Task #1 (2 pts.) - Sketches/Storyboard

Progress: 75%

Details:

- Provide at least two sketches
- Sketches should accurately represent the game's concept and theme
- Sketches/storyboards should be coherent with game's style and theme

Section #6: (2 pts.) External Feedback

Progress: 100%

⇒ Task #1 (0.67 pts.) - Feedback 1

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Note the person's name and relation to you
- Summarize feedback focusing on concept, mechanics, and style
- Reflect on how the feedback will be used to refine the design

Your Response:

joe classmate the game looks fun and insanely unbalanced, but also balanced at the same time. he can't wait to playtest it and snowball crazy hard and break the balance even more. certain things he expected to be very good are just ok, and other things that look more tame are very crushing. honestly i am worried about it being unbalanced, but at the same time if something is underwhelming i'll just buff it. the lack of balance is part of the fun

⇒ Task #2 (0.67 pts.) - Feedback 2

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Note the person's name and relation to you
- Summarize feedback focusing on concept, mechanics, and style
- Reflect on how the feedback will be used to refine the design

Your Response:

veronica friend she's more worried about how ambitious I am. she expected me to have a story ironed out by now, but I've only been focused on the mechanics and art, so i've completely neglected the story so far. which, I totally understand. she also says she's super excited to play it with me, but her focus is my art style, which she's been helping me with for the project. respectfully, I will not be acknowledging her concern for my ambition for the project. but her professional artist opinion has been invaluable.

≡ Task #3 (0.67 pts.) - Feedback 3

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Note the person's name and relation to you
- Summarize feedback focusing on concept, mechanics, and style
- Reflect on how the feedback will be used to refine the design

Your Response:

spyros best friend the slimeball thinks that he can beat me at my own game just because I made the zombie girl busted for his playstyle. that bum will not beat me at this game. I did ask him to comment on my actual mechanics, to which he says that the objective of being the last one standing is kind of ridiculous, which I agree on. so I'm leaning towards making a final boss of sorts instead, but I also don't really want to have a finite end to this game. so I'll need to think about it more thoroughly. (I have some seriously busted character combinations, if you pick 4 specific characters, roll well, and play perfectly, you can literally deal like 10000 damage in one turn? or something like that, that's what my calculations went at. implying the final boss slot is already open, and the characters are in walking range of the boss, smoking girl can stack burn on the target which deals percentage damage, battery girl can apply stun and crit off it, then dragon girl can apply bleed and detonate all the stacks of debuffs. at base with no items, all that with minimal setup and 3 characters deals 7.5% of the enemy's max health + $(1+2+1+2(3)+1+4)$ (d12 rolls). not accounting for assassin girl with perfect movement and crit, dealing 144×3 . which obviously is insane)
